

1. What did Wish announce?

- We announced that ContextLogic has entered into an agreement to sell substantially all of its operating assets and liabilities, principally comprising the Wish ecommerce platform, to Qoo10.
- This means that, upon closing of the transaction, the Wish ecommerce platform, including the Wish brands, logistics infrastructure and technology, will transition to new ownership.
- ContextLogic will continue to be publicly traded and the Board believes this transaction will effectively reduce the cash burn in the remaining business entity to near zero, monetize Wish's operating assets at the highest value possible, and preserve value for shareholders.

2. What alternatives did the Board consider as part of its review?

- The Board conducted a thorough review of strategic alternatives with the assistance of outside financial and legal advisors.
- As part of this review, the Board evaluated a variety of potential outcomes, including various sale alternatives.
- Ultimately, the Board determined that the proposed sale of its operating assets and liabilities, while preserving the approximately $2.7 billion in U.S. Federal Net Operating Loss ("NOL") carryforwards, represented the best path forward for shareholders to maximize shareholder value.

3. Why are shareholders not receiving the cash proceeds from the sale?

- The Board has a fiduciary duty to its shareholders and determined that this transaction is the best path forward to maximize shareholder value.
- This transaction structure allows ContextLogic to preserve the value of its NOLs, which the Board determined was superior to a cash transaction that would not preserve the NOLs.

4. Can shareholders elect to receive cash for their investment upon close?

- No. Upon completion of the transaction, ContextLogic will remain a publicly traded entity and shareholders are able to buy and sell shares as they can today.
- After closing, ContextLogic will be debt-free and retain certain assets, including net cash from the sale and approximately $2.7 billion of NOLs.
- The Board intends to use the NOLs to offset future obligations.

5. As of September 30, 2023, Wish had $492 million on its balance sheet. Why is the purchase price $173 million?

- The purchase price reflects the value of the assets, less liabilities.
- The agreed upon purchase price of $173 million represents a value of $6.50 per share, or a premium of 44% to the Company's closing stock price on February 9, 2024, the last trading day prior to the announcement of the transaction.

6. What are ContextLogic shareholders being asked to approve?

- ContextLogic shareholders are being asked to approve the transaction with Qoo10.
- Additional details will be included in the proxy materials with respect to the transaction to be distributed to shareholders in the coming weeks, including instructions on how to vote your shares at a special meeting of ContextLogic shareholders.
- Assuming the receipt of shareholder approval, we expect the transaction to close in the second quarter of 2024.
